This Has Reached London.
While spending the winter in Georgia, before his inauguration as President, Mr. Taft went to the city of Athens to deliver an address to the students of the University of Georgia. He met a member of the faculty—a staunch Democrat—who said, "Judge, I voted the Democratic ticket, but wanted to see you win."
"Judge Taft replied, 'You remind me of the story of Brer Jasper and Brer Johnson, who were both deacons in the Shilo Baptist Church, although avowed enemies. Brer Jasper died, and the other deacons told Brer Johnson that he must say something good about the deceased on Sunday night. At first he declined, but finally consented. Sunday night, when the time for the eulogy arrived, he arose slowly and said: 'Brethren and Sisters, promised for say something good about Deacon Jasper tonight, and I will say we all hope he's gone where we know he ain't.'—London Tit-Bits.

Baby's Scalp All Crusted Over.
"Our little daughter, when three months old, began to break out on the head, and we had the best doctors to treat her, but they did not do her any good. They said she had eczema. Her scalp was a solid scale all over. The burning and itching was so severe that she could not rest, day or night. We had about given up all hopes when we read of the Cuticura Remedies. We at once got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and followed directions carefully. After the first dose of the Cuticura Resolvent, we used the Cuticura Soap freely and applied the Cuticura Ointment. Then she began to improve rapidly and in two weeks the scale came off her head and new hair began to grow. In a very short time she was well. She is now sixteen years of age and a picture of health. We used the Cuticura Remedies about five weeks, regularly, and then we could not tell she had been affected by the disease. We used no other treatments after we found out what the Cuticura Remedies would do for her. J. Fish and Ella M. Fish, Mt. Vernon, Ky., Oct. 12, 1903."

"Lucky girl!" she exclaimed, with woman's intuition. "She is marrying a plumber."

EXERCISE FREELY IF FORTY OR OVER.

Men of This Age, Says Dr. Coughlin, Should Go in For Sports and Be Active.

Men beyond their fortieth year are earnestly advised by Dr. Robert E. Coughlin, of Brooklyn, writing in the current number of the Medical Record, to take abundant exercise in order to keep their systems in repair.

"Such men," writes the physician in a complimentary strain, "are a community's greatest asset. They are at the head of all great enterprises; they are the individuals with big ideas and who put through big schemes; they are our engineers, inventors, bankers, incorporators, professors and successful professional men. We as physicians should try to study this subject so that we may prolong these valuable lives instead of allowing ordinary laymen to direct men regarding their health."

"Who has not heard of our great statesmen putting themselves in the hands of crude trainers and former trainers of prize fighters without medical knowledge and training. The general results cannot be good, except for the fact that these men need exercise, and need it badly."

"One noted athlete has lately made the following statement regarding life in cities: 'The New Yorker wants bottled stuff to cure him; he has not time for exercise. Let a physician tell a man to exercise to cure his rheumatism or his gout or his neurasthenia, or any of his ills that the golden drug brings on, and he will call the doctor a fool and demand pills or bottled drugs that will cure him while he sleeps. It would take too much time away from his desk or store to exercise.'"

Dr. Coughlin especially warns men who have been athletes in their younger years against getting out of condition.

"From the twenty-first year to the fortieth," he continues, "little may be said, as most young men have by this time passed out of athletic life and gone into their chosen vocations. The eagerness to make a living and the desire to succeed in life compel them to be up and doing. As a rule degenerative changes are not so apparent and to notice is taken of such changes until middle life is reached. This is the time, however, when habits of life are formed. The enlarged heart may call upon the former athlete for some stimulation, and instead of exercising he takes to drink. One athletically inclined always athletically bent would be a good rule."

Speaking of men well on in years who have dropped their exercise, Dr. Coughlin declares that there was something sadly significant in the death of William Blake, a Harvard athlete in his youth, who took no exercise in the last year of his life, and thus paved the way for the fatal stroke of apoplexy which took his life.

"After forty," writes the physician in conclusion, "degenerative changes are the most likely sequence to an early active life, especially if, as occurs often, the individual becomes sedentary in his habits. As a rule men more than forty do not exercise sufficiently to keep up metabolism. One should be on the lookout for high blood pressure at this time."

Dr. Coughlin advises the following of nearly any kind of good sport, but considers walking in good style as the best exercise.

HOME OF THE SHETLAND PONY.
Just off the coast of Scotland there is a group of islands called the Shetland Islands. On one of this group of Shetlands the men are so large they are almost giants, for they are tall, strong and broad shouldered. Their wives and children, too, are fine looking and intelligent. Only twenty-five miles away from this island of Fetlar is one called Muckle Roe. There the men are small, ill-shaped, homely, and, in fact, look almost like queer little dwarfs. These people are so very loyal to each other that they do not like to welcome any of their neighboring islanders to live in Muckle Roe. For this reason these queer people make very little progress. When the people of Shetland Islands reach the age of twenty they feel rather sure of a long life, for over half of the population live to be seventy years old and many of the people lead vigorous out-of-door lives until they are past eighty years of age.

A school teacher down in Mississippi: "I had been a coffee drinker since my childhood, and the last few years it had injured me seriously. 'One cup of coffee taken at breakfast would cause me to become so nervous that I could scarcely go through with the day's duties, and this nervousness was often accompanied by deep depression of spirits and heart palpitation. 'I am a teacher by profession, and when under the influence of coffee had to struggle against crossness when in the school room. 'When talking this over with my physician, he suggested that I try Postum, so I purchased a package and made it carefully according to directions; found it excellent of flavor, and nourishing. 'In a short time I noticed very gratifying effects. My nervousness disappeared, I was not irritated by my pupils, life seemed full of sunshine, and my heart troubled me no longer. 'I attribute my change in health and spirits to Postum alone. 'Read the little book, 'The Road to Wellville,' in pkg. 'There's a Reason.'"

Japanese Police.
Japan's police force was originally the most aristocratic body of the kind in the world. Its establishment was almost coincident with the Emperor's decree forbidding the wearing of swords. By a stroke of the imperial pen the samurai were deprived of cherished weapons by which the gentlemen of Japan had been accustomed from immemorial times to advertise their rank. So they went into the police, where it is still possible to carry a sword. And a very formidable weapon it was, being of the unhanded variety.—Chicago News.

Living in a Glass House.
Alice and Nick and a few poodle dogs were seated at home last night; The flames burst forth from the crackling logs.
And their glare was warm and bright, "Daddy is after those naughty French," cried Alice in delight; "It's good for them, too; they have no defense,"
And her pride was a pretty sight. "Race suicide is a terrible thing," As Daddy has often said;
Her eye was clear, her voice had a ring— Then Nicholas raised his head. He laid down his paper, then took it up, His words had a meaning sting; For he said, as he kicked the nearest pup: "Yes, it's a terrible thing."

What Ails You?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.
